SBA changes heating oil dealer size standard:

Federal loans to help small heating oil distributors

On August 13, Mark
Hayward, Rhode Island district director, the Rhode Island Oil Institute, oil dealers and local lenders met to discuss financing options and technical assistance programs.

One of the main topics of discussion was the fact that home heating oil is getting more and more expensive; even some retail distributors can barely afford it. To help, the Small Business Administration has revised the small business size standard for the heating oil dealers industry (North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) code 454311) from $11.5 million in average annual receipts to 50 employees, and the size standard for the Liquefied Petroleum Gas (Bottled Gas) Dealers industry (NAICS code 454312) from $6.5 million in average annual receipts (AAR) to 50 employees. This change which is effective August 21, 2008, gives small heating oil distributors better access to loans they may need to stay in business.

The SBA said it is making the change, first proposed in October, because large and fluctuating increases in the prices of heating oil and propane over the past several years indicate that a more stable measure of company size is needed.

While the wholesale price of home heating oil has slightly fallen, the average is still around 75 percent higher per gallon than this time last year. Because the price has risen so dramatically, small retail distributors may be unable to borrow enough money to pay up front for the home heating oil they need to deliver to customers.

SBA partnership with the Navy will provide contract opportunities he U.S. Small Business Administration and the Department of Navy has signed a Memorandum of Agreement that will improve federal contracting opportunities for more than 240 small disadvantaged firms participating in the SBA's 8(a) Business Development

Development program. Under the agreement, the Naval Sea Systems Command will use its SeaPort-e Web-based services acquisition tool containing Multiple Award Contracts to award federal contracts directly to firms participating in the 8(a) program. The 8(a) program is a business development program that provides management and technical assistance, and assistance in identifying federal contracting opportunities to socially and economically disadvantaged businesses. These firms will have the opportunity to perform 22 types of services, including research and development support, engineering and acquisition logistics support.

Under the agreement, the Navy will be able to expedite the competition and award process directly with 8(a) firms without SBA as an intermediary.

"Thistle announced that he had some initial success from the public relations effort; B-Fresh Gum was accepted by Whole Foods."

RISBDC adds snap to B-Fresh Gum

Cobert and Ada Thistle came in to discuss the best way to move their product into a national sales position. Robert, a Ph.D. scientist, invented a breath-freshening gum that is totally natural and, because it does not use any chemicals, does not leave any after-taste. He holds a U.S. patent on this product and has a great deal of impressive science supporting the products. The scientific principal is to raise the pH level of the saliva in the mouth to reduce the presence of bacteria. Vitamins may be added as a health supplement. Dr. Thistle has also invented a spray device to introduce vitamins sublingually, and is working on a breath mint as well. His wife, Ada, a nurse, works very closely with Bob in the busi-

Their marketing approach when they first came to the RISBDC included a premium price point to identify the product with high quality. They sell their products exclusively online via a third-party operated Web site. The company had seen steady growth through this approach to the market

The Thistles' goal was to expand this company to a national and even international sales position. They understand that this will involve significant investment or commercial debt. They want to analyze all the possibilities to determine how best to proceed.

RISBDC regional director
Douglas Jobling introduced the Thistles to RISBDC consultant Tim McEnerney. He suggested that they consider entering the retail sales market in addition to the Web site.
He also strongly recommended a public relations effort to gain more exposure for the product. Tim pledged to contact some PR professionals to gain such exposure.

In doing so, Tim reinforced Jobling's recommendation that the Thistle's analyze their financial picture so as to be able to free up cash for a strong marketing effort. This need was reinforced when Bob Thistle announced that he had some initial success from the public relations effort - B-Fresh Gum was accepted by Whole Foods. B-Fresh at the time had grown to a distribution system selling to over 200 independent retailers. The necessity to ramp up production even further required a fresh infusion of capital. As would be expected the fast growth of the company had placed strains on cash flow.

Jobling alerted Bob and Ada to the Town of Smithfield Revolving Loan Fund. The Revolving Loan Fund would not offer a lot of money, but might be helpful as mezzanine financing. In addition, Jobling assigned RISBDC consultant John Nelson, an extremely experienced former commercial lender at several Rhode Island banks, to help the Thistles analyze their financial picture and explore various financial alternatives.

Nelson provided extensive assistance to help them analyze their revenue trends, complete a full set of financial statements (Income Statement, Balance Sheet, and Cash Flow) and prepare projections for each of those statements. After getting those documents in proper order, he helped them to complete an SBA loan application.

As a result of this assistance, the Thistles were approved for an SBA-guaranteed 7(j) loan by Coastway Credit Union.

In the winter term of 2007/2008, Gary Marcotte, a Johnson & Wales marketing student, was hired to lead a market expansion and product development effort. Gary contacted Professor John Krupa to solicit help from the Jr. Consultant program in the College of Business. Professor Krupa referred Lauren Marchitto, a graphics design student, to Gary. It wasn't more than a couple of weeks before Gary saw how much the company could use Lauren's design talent to modify the product packaging and website, thus revitalizing the brand. The company hired Lauren, on a part-time basis, to help with multiple marketing and marketing communication efforts. This is a wonderful example of leverage. When clients take the time to work with students the initial investment yields returns much greater than the initial investment. Collaborating with community resources can create a win/win situation for all stake-

National Ombudsman releases annual report

he Office of the National Ombudsman at the U.S. Small Business Administration recently released its annual report to the 110th Congress, rating federal agencies' responsiveness to the regulatory enforcement and compliance issues faced by small businesses during fiscal year 2007.

The ONO significantly increased its responsiveness to small businesses, handling over 500 cases involving regulatory or compliance issues. Federal agencies decreased its response time to these cases from 52 days in 2006 to 27 days in 2007.

Last year, federal agencies across the board improved their compliance efforts. This year, the National Ombudsman recognized six federal agencies for their extraordinary efforts in responding to small businesses' regulatory enforcement cases.

The National Ombudsman's 2007 and additional information about the Office of the National Ombudsman is available at www.sba.gov/ombudsman.

From the District
Director's Desk

Mark S. Hayward

As we approach the end of the Federal fiscal year we still have much to accomplish. The summer of 2008 has been extremely busy. We have been working with the Rhode Island Oil Institute and our local fuel oil dealers to overcome some of the obstacles in getting the needed access to capital to keep operations in place over the upcoming winter season.

The agency very rapidly revised the size standards from a dollar amount to number of employees for this industry. This action now makes nearly all of the Rhode Island oil heat dealers eligible for SBA guaranteed loans.

This was a very educational process for all of us. We now know that 78 percent of all heating oil used, is in the northeastern part of the United States. In Rhode Island, 44 percent of all homes heat with oil, with similar percentages in neighboring Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The New England SBA district directors and regional administrator have taken the lead in suggesting changes to programs that will enable the industry to access needed lines of credit for this winter. In fact, we have suggested to SBA Central Office in Washington allow our participating lenders to utilize the "Seasonal Line of Credit" to more efficiently respond to the needs of Rhode Islands small businesses affected by the rise in oil prices.

The district office is working on the "2009 Rhode Island Economic Summit," which will be held on January 9th, 2009. This will be the 3rd annual summit sponsored by SBA and the Rhode Island Small Business Development Center at Johnson and Wales University. The "Summit" is an excellent forum that encourages dialogue between the Executive, Legislative Branches and the Rhode Island small business community.

The Summit will include 150 small business owners. Governor Carcieri has again committed to attending the bulk of the meeting. We look forward a successful event and the participation of our elected leadership.

High-Impact Firms Create Rhode Island's Jobs And Growth

igh-impact firms create Rhode Island's new jobs and growth, according to a study recently released by the Office of Advocacy of the U.S. Small Business Administration. Distributed across all industries, high-impact firms account for almost all employment and revenue growth in the national economy, the study concludes.

Of the 376,604 high impact firms identified by researchers nationwide, 1,297 are located in Rhode Island. That number represents 2.42 percent of Rhode Island's firms. The study High-Impact Firms: Gazelles Revisited, defines high-impact firms as those whose sales have at least doubled over a four-year period and which have an employment "growth quantifier" (the firm's absolute change in employment multiplied by the percent change) of two or more.

The study notes that such firms are found across all industries and in all geographic regions. It ranks regions, states, metropolitan statistical areas, and counties by their percentage of highimpact firms. The study finds, with some data limitations, that high-impact firms are not start-ups but are on average around 25 years old, and that they come in all size classes. The report also documents that over the periods studied, nearly all job losses came from large, low-impact firms.

"High-impact firms are important to Rhode Island's economic growth and development," said Dr. Chad Moutray, Chief Economist for the Office of Advocacy. "State policy makers would be wise to consider how their policies can encourage such firms."

For a complete copy of the report and rankings of highimpact firms by region, state, MSA, and county, visit the Office of Advocacy website at www.sba.gov/advo

SBA to increase funding for 504 loan program

eginning August 18, companies with a net worth of up to $8.5 and as much as $3 million in annual earnings may borrow from the SBA 504

Congress created the SBA 504 program to help small businesses gain favorable financing terms and retain operating cash while expanding. Companies buy real estate, buildings and equipment with SBA 504 financing. A recent national study of the program said borrowing companies return $94 in tax revenue for every $1 of SBA 504 funding they receive

SOP 50-10

Revised environmental definition and reliance letter

OP 50 10, which governs 7(a) and 504 loan processing as well as the requirements to become and remain a 7(a) lender (Lender) or a Certified Development Company (CDC), was completely rewritten and, in March 2008, SOP 50 10(5) was made available with a delayed effective date. On June 6, 2008, SBA issued technical corrections to SOP 50 10(5) (see Notice 5000-1057) and extended the effective date to August 1, 2008.

Since its release SBA has continued to receive feedback on the revised SOP. As a result of the feedback received from the lending community and from environmental professionals, SBA has modified the definition of "Records Search with Risk Assessment and the Reliance Letter"

The definition of "Records Search with Risk Assessment" was modified to clarify that any number of historical use records may be utilized based upon the judgment of the environmental professional conducting the search. The revised definition of "Records Search with Risk Assessment" now reads as follows:

"Records Search with Risk Assessment" means and includes (1) a search of the government databases identified in 40 CFR § 312.265 for an AAI compliant Phase I as well as a search of historical use records (for example, aerial photography, city directories, reverse directories and/or fire insurance maps) pertaining to the Property and Adjoining Properties; and (2) a risk assessment by an Environmental Professional based on the results of the records search as to whether the Property is either "high risk" or "low risk" for Contamina-

SBA also revised the Reliance Letter to: (1) clarify that the maximum amount of liability to an environmental professional or their firm will not exceed the $1,000,000 in errors and omissions liability insurance that they are required to maintain; (2) clarify that the Lender or SBA may provide the borrower with a copy of the environmental report for informational purposes only; (3) state that an environmental professional may be employed by or affiliated with the lender but must be independent of and not a representative, employee or affiliate of the borrower or operating company; (4) incorporate provisions to recognize that environmental professionals may be working with environmental firms; and (5) add a signature block for an environmental firm to sign if applicable.

Getting Veterans Back to Business:

How the SBA financially integrates veterans back into the business world

he veteran's small business guide was developed by the SBA for small business owners returning from an active tour. The guide provides tools, planning resources and information needed to help re-establish their small business.

The SBA offers several very successful loan programs that veterans can take advantage of. Some of these programs include the basic

7(a) Loan Guaranty, the 504 loan program, Microloan, a 7(m) Loan Program, and most specifically, the Military Reservist
Economic Injury Disaster Loan Program.
The purpose of the Military Reservist Economic Disaster Loan program (MREIDL) is to provide funds to eligible small businesses to meet its ordinary and necessary operating expenses that it could have met, but is unable to meet, because an essential employee was "called-up" to active duty in their role as a military reservist.

These loans are intended only to provide the amount of working capital needed by a small business to pay its necessary obligations as they mature until operations return to normal after the essential employee is released from active military duty.

SBA Loans Enrich Your Portfolio

SBA loan-guaranty programs are good business for you and your small business customers. In a tightening credit market, an SBA guaranty provides relief from the cost of funding loans.

Benefits include:

- Protect 50 to 85 percent of your loan with an SBA guaranty.
- Expand lending opportunities while promoting your other lender services.
- Reduce your risk when offering credit to less established businesses.

Look for a visit from an SBA lender relations specialist, or for more information, go to www.sba.gov/banking.

All SBA programs and services are provided on a nondiscriminatory basis. U.S. Small Business Administration
